

10 reasons to use the UKs fastest job search

Check4Jobs.com was designed to work with job boards as a genuine and cost effective way of attracting online jobseekers. With the increasing amount of job boards and employment agencies now entering the market it is getting harder and harder to attract both new clients and job hunters to your website. Check4Jobs can help solve both these problems.

Pay-Per Click Listing

It's no secret that Google dominates online traffic. Any job board old or new who wants to be a success cannot avoid spending a large percentage of their advertising budget with Google's adword system. Typically a Google click through can cost anything from £0.30 pence per click to a whopping £4.00 for some of the more lucrative keywords such as 'finance jobs'. Key players in the market can spend as much as £100,000 per month to receive the majority of the Google traffic to their job boards and this is where Check4Jobs.com can help slash costs.

Our pay per click listings start from just £0.20 pence per click and we pride ourselves not on high volumes of clicks but on CVs registered on our client's database. Being a product based search engine the people who visit our site come to us knowing exactly what they expect to find, jobs, and lots of them.

So if you have 100,000 jobs on your website or 100 you are guaranteed complete exposure when the relevant keywords are searched. Above is an example of an 'IT' search for the London area. As you can see there are no fewer than 8 different advertisers whose results are being displayed. The Check4Jobs sponsored links programme is probably one of the best ways to put your website in front of 1000s of online jobseekers. Our pay-per-click advertising system works in a very similar way to Google's adwords and Yahoo's sponsored links programme giving a very familiar feel to users.

The Check4Jobs system is both easy to use and cost effective. Every day Check4Jobs delivers the highest quality jobseeker traffic available on the web to some of the UK largest job boards. Check4Jobs uses the content of your jobs and compares them to our searches to produce targeted advertising which appears above and to the side of our organic job listings.

Job boards can sponsor their website and on pay per click basis. Users can also change the targeting of their adverts by choosing specific keywords and/or location/s and specify a daily or monthly budget and increase or decrease the price per click to make the jobs more or less visible.

Eliminating Click Fraud

By 2008, the estimated cost of click fraud to online advertisers will be in excess of £1 billion. The major players in the market now do their best to eliminate click fraud from search engines but do not want to add extra filtering pages to trick robots and spy software.

The screenshot shows a job listing on TheLadders.co.uk. The listing is for a "Top Class Senior Developer/IT Manager" position in London, South East, with a salary range of £40,000 - £45,000 per annum plus benefits. The listing includes a brief description of the role and a link to "more details". The browser's address bar shows "TheLadders.co.uk" and the search engine is "Internet".

The screenshot shows a Microsoft Internet Explorer error message. The message reads: "You appear to be abusing our search engine listing. YOUR ACTIONS ARE BEING LOGGED. Please stop clicking on our search engine listing." There is an "OK" button at the bottom of the message box.

Our click fraud detection is well respected and is generally known to be the best in the business. You will not find many other job search engines talk about this subject as they have little or no protection against it. This is not the case at Check4Jobs.

Check4Jobs click fraud detection has been designed to work in concert with some of the world's largest spam databases and alerts us to suspicious activity instantly. Our software provides detailed reporting and helps us identify who is abusing our site and eliminates these users from clicking jobs and browsing our website by displaying a message in their browsers. Any clicks that we identify as being suspicious or fraudulent will not be billed to our clients and will be promptly removed from any back office report.
